Susan Hurst and Cathy Nugent will lead the group through exercises exploring color themes using The Artist's Mixing Guide Color Wheel. The goal is to learn the importance and power of color choices in ways you may not be familiar with. The first half of the class will explore different color themes in small studies using the landscape and/or still life. The second half of the class will explore the impact color choices have on our painting and in our surroundings. The class will end with a group critique to discuss the studies by the students and how the color wheel helped them to make their pastel choices.

We will break for lunch from 12-1. Bring a sack lunch and continue to work through the lunch hour or take a break and visit any of the numerous eateries within walking distance of the Hub.

Supplies needed for the workshop:

Assortment of pastels of your choice

Surfaces of your choice-11x14 or smaller-at least four

Still life setup will be provided

Landscape photos will be provided or you can bring your own

Drop cloth for table and for floor
